

New contact form: where should it go?

Darren Drake website · Signal 1A · prepared 24 September 2026 · the screenshots are from the private preview; nothing is live

The new contact form is built in the Signal 1A style, from the component you chose, with the fields you asked for. It is shorter than the existing intake form. The only decision left is where it goes. The three options:

| Option          | Where the new form appears         | Full intake form |
|-----------------|------------------------------------|------------------|
| A (recommended) | Contact page, keep the intake form | Stays            |
| B               | Replace the intake form everywhere | Retired          |
| C               | Contact page and the home page     | Stays            |

How the new form differs from the intake form

| Question                    | New contact form                                                                                                                            | Intake form (current)                                                                                    |

Both forms send to the same firm inbox. Each inquiry is labelled with the form it came from, and both show success only once the firm's system has received it.

Current intake form (at /intake/).

Recommended

The new form sits on the Contact page next to the phone number. The full intake form stays at /intake/, and every "Start your intake" button still goes there. The Contact page links to it for people who want to give more detail.

Good

- Two choices: a quick message, or a full inquiry with the court date.
- Nothing else on the site changes.

Trade-offs

- Two forms to keep up to date.
- The firm receives two kinds of inquiry (each is labelled with the form it came from).

Option B: Replace the intake form everywhere

The new form becomes the only form. The intake page and every "Start your intake" button use it, and the longer intake form is retired.

Good

- One form: simplest for visitors and for the office.
- Shortest to fill in, so more people may finish it.

Trade-offs

- The office no longer receives the county or next court date up front, and has to ask on the callback.
- Only two choices for what the matter is about (no DUI/DWI or domestic assault choice).

The mock-up shows a website for Darren Drake, Attorney at Law. The header includes the firm's name, navigation links (Home, Practice Areas, About Darren, Contact), a phone number (615) 546-5551, and a "Start your intake" button. The main content area is titled "Home / Intake" and features a "Demo form, not connected" warning. Below this is a "CONTACT US" section with the heading "Let's get in touch." and the phone number (615) 546-5551. The form fields include: "Your name (required)" with a search icon, "Client's name, if different from yours (optional)" with a search icon, "What is this about? (required)" with radio buttons for "Arrested in Rutherford County" and "Other", "How can we reach you? (required)" with checkboxes for "Call", "Text", and "Email", "Phone (optional)" with a phone icon and the number 615-555-0123, "Email address (optional)" with an email icon, "When would you like to hear back? (required)" with radio buttons for "As soon as possible" and "Sometime this week", and a "Message (optional)" text area with a character count of 1000 of 1000 characters remaining. A "Send message ->" button is at the bottom of the form. The footer includes the firm's name, a "Start your intake" button, and a grid of links for "Quick links", "Practice areas", and "Contact". The "Quick links" include Home, Practice Areas, About Darren, Contact, and Intake. The "Practice areas" include First-Time Offenders, Criminal Defense, DUI/DWI, Domestic Assault, and Expungement. The "Contact" section includes the phone number (615) 546-5551 and links for "Office address - to confirm" and "Email - to confirm". The footer also contains copyright information, a privacy notice, accessibility statement, and legal notice.

Option B (mock-up): the intake page with the new form in place of the intake form.

Option C: Contact page and the home page

Same as A, and the form also appears near the bottom of the home page, just above the "Ready when you are" band. The intake form stays.

Good

- People can send a message without leaving the home page.

Trade-offs

- A much longer home page on phones (the form adds about three screens).
- Competes with the "Start your intake" button right below it.

The mock-up shows a dark-themed mobile interface. At the top, there are three expandable sections: "What should I include in my inquiry?", "What areas do you serve?", and "Can I call instead?". Below these is a large contact form titled "CONTACT US" with the heading "Let's get in touch." and the phone number "(615) 546-5551". The form includes a disclaimer "Demo form, not connected. Nothing you enter will be sent yet." and several input fields: "Your name (required)", "Client's name, if different from yours (optional)", "What is this about? (required)" with radio buttons for "Arrested in Rutherford County" and "Other", "How can we reach you? (required)" with radio buttons for "Call", "Text", and "Email", "Phone (optional)", "Email address (optional)", "When would you like to hear back? (required)" with radio buttons for "As soon as possible" and "Sometime this week", and a "Message (optional)" text area. A "Send message →" button is at the bottom of the form, with a note "Sending this form does not create an attorney-client relationship." below it. At the very bottom of the page is a "Ready when you are." band with the text "Start with a short inquiry. It takes a few minutes." and a "Start your intake" button next to the phone number "(615) 546-5551".

Option C (mock-up): the bottom of the home page with the form added above the closing band.

Decision

---

- ☐ A: Contact page, keep the intake form (recommended)
- ☐ B: Replace the intake form everywhere
- ☐ C: Contact page and the home page

Darren must confirm before launch: the line "We generally return calls within a day." It is a promise to the public, so the site won't publish it until he approves it (or changes it).

Other changes in this round (already made in the preview):

- The home page now shows three practice areas: First-Time Offenders, DUI/DWI and Domestic Assault.
- Criminal Defense and Expungement stay on the Practice Areas page (five areas in all).
- The new practice pages have placeholder wording that Darren still needs to write or approve.
